

Interactive Training

How much do you invest in learning and development initiatives? How do you deliver these messages to your audience? How do you ensure that the content is retained? And more importantly how do you measure your return on Investment?

This is where we can help.

Anyone can deliver a standalone video to play at a team meeting.

At Tympani we marry this communication method to a group learning experience which in turn links to an on-line assessment for the individuals.

This generates a report that lets you monitor the quality and effectiveness of the package which is a great measurable for your return on investment.

By working closely with you, we deliver a bespoke product unique to your business that is both cost effective, accessible and addresses the 'speed' and 'cost' challenges that face today's markets. We call it GLi.

GLi or Group Learning Interactive doesn't rely on a specialist trained facilitator; it could be a manager or a supervisor who delivers the coaching.

GLi is the future of training using video and it will help you improve your efficiencies of your education and development needs.