

About Us and Our Process

Building on our Qwik-Mix offering, our stand alone videos deliver a detailed bespoke visual communication in an effective and consistent manner. They not only look great but are cost effective too

We have a strong background in broadcast television which gives us the right skills and experience to deliver your project. We use experienced dedicated professionals for each part of the process. Whether this be the directing, camera, sound, editing or office support.

This gives peace of mind that we can deliver the project on time and on budget

Video production calls for careful planning so our first step is to develop the script and create a visual style that best suits you.

Next we shoot the programme. Whether on location or in the studio all elements of the script are covered. We use high grade professional equipment including High Definition to ensure that your production has a real TV look and feel.

The next step is editing. This is a creative process where all the programme material is blended together. This includes graphics, music and voice over. During this process stylistic effects can also be added.

Finally we can also translate your programme into any language you require. This is useful if your audience is based around Europe or beyond.

Whatever your message is and however you want it delivered, Tympani is here to help you. By using us you are assured of a quality communication that reflects your mission.
